Forum Africa & landscape I

April 21st, 09.00-10.45

The goal of 2016 IFLA African Forum is the regionalisation of International Landscape Convention as developmental solution to contemporary global challenges. This paradigm shift sees landscape as human construct reflecting dialogue that occurs between human and ecological processes. Such dialogue is influenced by history, ecological diversity, geomorphic formations, climatic differences, belief system and conflict of interests. This is true of Africa with complex and diverse landscapes celebrating human interactions with rural, urban and natural destinations. The question is will today's celebration provide desired opportunity for tomorrow without diminishing meaningful environmental features for the people? What type of regional landscapes do we want?

As an easily accessible heritage, everybody's opinion matters on landscape issues. Participatory landscape decision making open essential window to carry people along in the planning, restoration, protection of national and cross national landscapes. This is because landscape remains a major determinant of individual and community social wellbeing. Sustainable planning and design, on this platform, then recognize synergy in policy objectives for urban planning, heritage conservation, productive agricultural land management, protective forest resources and restoration of conflict landscapes. Your opinion matters as we strive to craft Africa Landscape Initiative. Please join us.

MAKING LANDSCAPES: TRENDS AND SYNERGIES FOR EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION

Making landscapes is acting, devising and concretely working to develop Landscapes and promote Landscape Culture. It's therefore undeniable that a solid approach to current media, cannot overlook the new communication trends that are quickly taking shape and that are also evolving as quickly. Only a strong synergy between the people who CREATE Landscapes and the people who SPREAD the knowledge will deliver the most effective results: mutual awareness of requests, changes, and needs should be the common goal, in order to outline and spread the Culture of Landscape of the Third Millenium.

Tutela e valorizzazione del paesaggio: politiche, strumenti e strategie dalla scala europea a quella locale. Esperienze a confronto

«Paesaggio» designa una determinata parte di territorio, così come è percepita dalle popolazioni, il cui carattere deriva dall'azione di fattori naturali e/o umani e dalle loro interrelazioni». (CEP, art. 1, lettera a)

Agli Stati è richiesta l'adozione di politiche finalizzate alla sua salvaguardia e adeguate azioni di pianificazione e gestione, che abbiano incidenza positiva sul paesaggio, comprese azioni di sensibilizzazione e formazione di cittadini e operatori.

Un'efficace definizione e implementazione delle politiche pubbliche per il paesaggio può essere garantita solo attraverso un'azione coordinata dell'Unione Europea, degli Stati membri e degli enti regionali e locali.

Obiettivo del Forum è quello di consentire un confronto tra attori pubblici che, nei differenti livelli istituzionali, hanno competenze in materia di governo del territorio e del paesaggio e che, attraverso gli strumenti di pianificazione, devono garantire l'implementazione e l'integrazione delle varie politiche e strategie europee in materia di sviluppo sostenibile, risorse naturali, culturali e paesaggio. Centrale è il ruolo del paesaggio e del paesaggista nella definizione delle politiche e degli strumenti di governo del territorio.

Il Forum Institutions & landscape prevede due focus.

Il primo focus riguarda la Convenzione Europea del Paesaggio e la sua attuazione all'interno delle politiche e degli strumenti di pianificazione e gestione del paesaggio a scala regionale. Tre regioni italiane (Piemonte, Puglia e Toscana) si confrontano. Il secondo focus concerne l'implementazione delle altre strategie europee (Convenzione delle Alpi, Strategia EUSALP, Strategia della Biodiversità, Comunicazione sulle Green Infrastructure) negli strumenti di pianificazione e nei progetti strategici di livello sovra-locale che includono il paesaggio e sono orientati alla creazione di modelli di sviluppo locale sostenibile e di green economy.

Brief

Protection and enhancement of the landscape: policy, tools and strategies from the European scale to the local scale. Comparing experiences

The Member States are required to adopt policies aimed at landscape preservation and appropriate action planning and management, which have a positive impact on it, including awareness raising and education of citizens and operators.

An effective definition and implementation of these policies can be ensured only by a coordinated action of the European Union, Member States and regional and local authorities.

The Forum goal is to allow a comparison between the public actors that, at different institutional levels, have responsibilities for the governance of territory and landscape and, through planning instruments, should ensure the implementation and integration of the various European policies and strategies for sustainable development, natural and cultural resources, and landscape.

The role of the landscape and of the landscape planner is central in the definition of these policies and territorial governance tools.

The Institutions & Landscape Forum has two focus.

The first focus is on European Landscape Convention and its implementation within the policies and landscape planning and management instruments at the regional scale. Three Italian regions (Piemonte, Puglia e Toscana) compare each other.

The second focus deals with the implementation of other European strategies (as Alpine Convention, EUSALP Strategy etc.) in the planning tools and in strategic projects that include the landscape and are oriented to the creation of local sustainable development models and green economy.

The Nature of the Just City – Speeches

April 21st, 16.30-17.30

Design and the Just City

What are the cities of our dreams? They must be resilient, sustainable, and livable. But we have to hope that justice hasn't gone out of style. Because while resilience is the word of the decade, as sustainability was before that, we have struggled with just cities for a much longer time. Largely we have come up short. So this dream needs a fourth element. These are the cities of our dreams: resilient, sustainable, livable, just. Design is a driver to both justice and injustice. For example, should all people in cities enjoy the benefits of green nature in cities? Yes. Do they now? No. Design, both in policy and practice can perpetuate structural injustice by limiting access to the benefits of good design, or by segregating people. For example, apartheid South Africa was not only a racial philosophy; it was enacted through design.

The lectures on the just city and design explore examples of how design and po

The Nature of the Just City – Fishbowl discussion

April 21st, 17.30-18.30

The "fish bowl" is a discussion technique in which all the chairs in the room are arranged in a circle, with six chairs at the center. Five chairs are occupied. Only people in the center chairs may speak. It starts with a question to the five: perhaps "how is the route to more just design for green cities?" Any of the five may answer. At any point, someone else from the audience may come forward and occupy a chair. When this happens, one of the other five occupying the middle must leave, so there is always one empty chair inviting a new speaker.

The Nature of Cities recently published a 26 essay series called The Just City Essays. See more here:

Forum Landscape networking I

April 22nd, 13.45-15.45

Chaired by Cesare Micheletti and Loredana Pontelli

Goal

Starting from UNESCO World Heritage up to common landscapes, the Forum aims to collect experiences and good governance practices that put the landscape heritage in the centre of social and economic interest.

For this purpose various institutions have been involved, both governmental and non-governmental at local, national and international level, which implement landscape management policies, protection and land development actions as well as cultural promotion activities.

The goal is to build a proactive network between governmental and non-governmental institutions, in order to establish a concrete action plan in favour of the landscape as a common heritage and resource.

Discussion questions

How much are the places of high landscape value considered (World Heritage Sites - both cultural and natural landscapes -, Biosphere Reserves, natural monuments, etc.) in the territorial government instruments?

What concrete actions are taken to ensure that landscape has an active role (and not only of protection) in the territorial and economic transformation scenarios?

The forum will focus on good practices that concern areas of management, planning and programming:

- # management plans of different landscape types (rural, urban, marine, mountain, etc.);
- # landscape plans which improve the quality of the landscape and the economic development of local communities;
- # overall strategies to support the landscape values when faced with economic and cultural transformations deriving from global changes and / or from the status of World Heritage Site.

Structure

The Forum is scheduled on April 22nd and is structured in two parts: speeches + panel discussion.

The first part (speeches) is dedicated to the presentation of experiences and good practices (13.45 – 15.45).

The second part (panel discussion) is dedicated to the debate on the questions of the Forum (16.45 – 18.00).

Keynote speaker
